All the automotive

and research you and your team will ever need, in one convenient, online location.

Knowledge is at the heart of good decision making. Ensuring your employees are abreast of the latest trends and industry developments is as important to your bottom line as employing the right people in the first place. Nowhere is this more so than in the fast-paced automotive sector.

Thanks to the rise of the internet and mobile devices, information sources are now readily available. However, the most accurate, authoritative and timely information, analysis and expert insight is at a premium.

Since 1999, just-auto.com has provided the global automotive industry with the latest news, research and analysis. And, as a market intelligence service, we go one, two, three steps further by providing expert commentary, executive interviews and personalised notifications to ensure all users never miss out and get left behind.

So what is a group membership?

Group memberships provide five to 50 of your colleagues with complete access to all areas of the automotive service - including the latest news, industry analysis, research and market intelligence.

Each member of your team will have this unique information service at their fingertips, making them among the most informed and market-savvy executives in the global automotive industry.
